A Letter from the President
Reflections on 2019

“The secret of change is to focus all of your energy not on fighting the old, but on building the new”

– Socrates

This past year, I have had the honor of serving as the president of the Cincinnati chapter of the AIA in its 149th year of existence. 149 years is a lot of history to reflect on and live up to. History alone, though, cannot prepare us for a future that, especially now, seems to be rapidly in flux. Our global climate is changing. Our profession is evolving. Technology is transforming at mind-boggling pace. Generational shifts in mindset, culture, and expectations are becoming undeniable. Change can be scary, but it can also bring boundless opportunity.

2019 was a year of change not just at the global level, but also at our very local level. Over the course of the year, AIA Cincinnati faced the challenge, but also the great opportunity, of hiring a new Executive Director. This process was at times difficult and time consuming, and it necessitated a real shift in priorities and goals for the chapter for the year. It was also a much needed opportunity for the AIA Cincinnati Board of Directors, as well as other members who generously volunteered their time, to evaluate and analyze the current and future needs of the chapter.

Difficult discussions were had, and we aired and assessed differences in opinion and priorities for the chapter. Change was embraced, and decisions were made with the intention of moving the chapter forward and preparing for the future instead of dwelling in the past. Through the course of conversation, the board returned time and time again to AIA Cincinnati member surveys of the past several years that identified better communication, affirming the value of architects, and “making a difference” as top priorities for our chapter. These desires became our framework for decision-making. Even once a new ED was hired, the board has continued to evaluate past practices and procedures, and seek new ways of serving our membership as efficiently and effectively as possible.

While the hiring of our new ED, Julie Carpenter, was in many ways the most visible singular moment in my term as president, we also had other notable events in 2019. These accomplishments include:

• Successfully hosting the Ohio Valley Region Convention in September.

• Recognizing exceptional projects with the CRAN awards and the CDA awards.

• Award of the Bettman Prize and the first AIA Cincinnati Impact Grant.

• A refresh of the AIA Cincinnati website

• Graduation of 12 emerging leaders from the VISION program.

In 2020 our chapter will celebrate our 150th year. While we will be fondly reflecting on our past during the celebration, I am confident that we will also be focused on our continued evolution as a chapter to serve our profession and community for years to come. While my term as president is ending, my commitment to the chapter and excitement for its future is not. I look forward to working with you all in a new (or different) role.

Sincerely,

Allison McKenzie, AIA
2019 AIA Cincinnati President

Executive Committee
A Letter from the Executive Director

Dear AIA Cincinnati members,

I joined you midway through 2019, starting work just in time for OVR, Sycamore Creek, the Cincinnati Design Awards, the Academy Summit, and planning for AIA Cincinnati’s 150th anniversary. It has been exciting, and also a little like trying to take a leisurely swim during a tsunami! I have big shoes to fill and I greatly appreciate the generosity of AIA members, board directors, committee chairs, past presidents, and supporters who have shared their experience and knowledge of this organization and the architecture community as I find my way.

In addition to the successful events mentioned above, our committees, knowledge communities, and special events organizers planned interesting programs, fun activities, and opportunities to recognize the work of Cincinnati architects. As AIA Cincinnati’s leadership transitions in the new year, I want to thank our board officers and committee chairs for all their work in 2019, as well as the many individual members who serve on committees and help organize our events and programs. I look forward to collaborating with the continuing and new leadership guiding the chapter in 2020.

As the 2020 program season gears up with VISION lectures, Academy offerings, and the CRANawards, I hope to meet more of AIA Cincinnati’s members. I’m eager to hear from you about the programs you want, services you need, and the architectural issues that concern you. When I’m not rushing off to a meeting or a chapter program, I’m in the office at the CCAD Monday through Friday. If you’re passing by, stop in and introduce yourself, or email me and we can meet for coffee.

I am excited about the 2020 programs already in the works, as well as the ideas still taking shape. I look forward to working with you all in the year ahead.

Julie Carpenter

Impact Grant

Overview

AIA Cincinnati believes that architecture is a powerful catalyst in our community. In 2019 we launched the AIA Cincinnati Impact Grant. The grant seeks dynamic ideas that leverage the power of design to enrich our community. Proposals that explore a method for advocating and raising the profile of architecture and its impact on society are considered for an award of $1,000 to $2,000. Upon completion of the project, the winning team(s) will deliver a program at an AIA Cincinnati event designated for this purpose.

2019 Winner
“Screen Time” by GBBN

The exhibit was an interactive, crowd-sourced, 3D projection-mapping experiment that was displayed during BLINK 2019.

It allowed you to experience space at 3 scales that architects move between during the design process:

1. The Digital Quilt is like a drawing
2. The Sandbox is like a model
3. The Photo Booth is like the built environment

Committees

Advocacy Committee
The Advocacy Committee works to strengthen the position of AIA Architects in the building industry by identifying and promoting the issues, policies, and positions important to the profession, the business, and the practice of architecture.

Communications Committee
Communications Committee meets monthly at the Cincinnati Center for Architecture + Design. The committee works with the executive director to develop public relations, marketing, and outreach strategies to better tell our stories to our members and the general public through traditional and social media.

Emerging Professionals
The Emerging Professionals group is organized to address issues of particular importance to recent graduates and interns, as well as newly licensed architects. This group supports the needs of emerging professionals by providing resources, seminars, and networking opportunities.

Program Committees

The Academy
The Academy is focused on providing high-quality continuing education experiences for architects and the professionals who support them. In addition to ongoing programming, each November, the Academy Summit (formerly Procrastinator University) provides two days of LU/HSW credits for AIA members and others to complete their required annual continuing education credits.

VISION
VISION is a year-long, award-winning program that supports emerging professionals interested in developing the skills necessary to advance to higher levels within the architectural profession. Each year, a class of a dozen candidates are selected to take part in monthly full-day training and workshops. Applications are accepted in October and the program runs November through August. In addition, VISION offers seven public keynote talks on subjects including community, advocacy, and the design process.
Knowledge Communities

CRAN – Custom Residential Architecture Network
Meets monthly at lunch. People engaged in, or who are interested in learning more about, custom residential practice are invited to participate in workshops and programs to enhance their skills and knowledge as well as help raise public awareness of local architects in residential design.

Urban Design
The Urban Design community provides opportunities to share informed viewpoints on specific urban planning issues through meetings, workshops, and public forums while increasing the role of Cincinnati architects in the public/private sector decision-making process. Urban Design works to continue an exchange of practices and ideas for architecture beyond individual buildings and client interests, with active partnering relationships that impact

Special Event Committees

Construction
Construction, Inc. is a nonprofit organization that holds annual design and build competitions across the country to benefit local food banks. AIA Cincinnati has at least one representative serving on the local planning committee, and dozens of AIA Cincinnati members are involved in designing and building the programs each year. To get involved, you can participate in the committee or organize a team at your firm.

SAIDworks
Each year, AIA Cincinnati partners with the University of Cincinnati’s School of Architecture and Interior Design (SAID) on an event to connect local firms with co-op candidates. SAIDworks gives local design firms an opportunity to showcase their firms, work, and culture to current students looking for co-op opportunities. The event begins with firm presentations followed by networking and opportunities for students to sign up for portfolio reviews. The following day, firm staff meet with students to review their portfolios and discuss co-op opportunities. Volunteers are needed to help plan the program, encourage firm participation, and provide on-site staffing during the event.
VISION Leadership Program

VISION is an Award-Winning year-long leadership program designed especially for architects licensed less than 10 years who want to gain the skills necessary to advance to higher levels within the architectural profession. Candidates apply to participate and only a select few are accepted in order to keep the learning focused and intimate. Participants are established in their careers and recognized as leaders with great potential within their practice.

The program consists of eleven intimate full-day sessions which convene monthly at various locations throughout the city. Each session varies in terms of implementation depending on the topic and speakers. During these sessions, Candidates gain exposure to local, regional and national leaders and issues, participate in panel discussions moderated by AIA Architects, provide monthly presentations, and gain continuous feedback.
